

Predictive Model to predict stock levels

Random Forest Regressor algorithm was trained on dataset producing mean absolute error of 0.2265

This feature importance visualization tells us:

1. The product categories were not that important
2. The unit price and temperature were important in predicting stock.
3. The hour of day was also important for predicting stock.

